A Violent Argument.

Because of an argument with a fellow laborer in DeSales Street northwest, yesterday morning, Reuben Majors, employed by the Crawford Paving Company, was struck on the ankle with a pick handle sustaining a fracture which will keep him in bed for some time. SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Anglo-Americans Entertained by Mr. Hazletine.

TWO PRETTY DEBUTANTES

Miss Marcia MacLennan and Miss Julia Waggoner Presented at Afternoon Tea—Program for New Year's Reception at the White House—Paine-Mattingsly Nuptials

Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Hazletine entertained at an elegantly appointed dinner last night. The distinguished company gathered around the rose-banked table were the Vice President and Mrs. Hobart, Lord Herschell, Sir Wilfrid and Lady Laurier, Sir Richard Cartwright, Miss Cartwright, Senator and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Foster, Miss Emery, Miss Hazletine, and Mr. Kasson.

American Beauty roses formed the floral decorations of the occasion, and music was furnished throughout the evening by an orchestra of mandolins.

Nature was in such gracious mood yesterday that one might have reasonably supposed that September had lost her way among the months and strayed into the realm of December. The sun shone brilliantly on the bride of the morning and lingered to beam indulgently on the two pretty debutantes who monopolized the social honors of the afternoon.

Miss Marcia MacLennan, the lovely young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. MacLennan, was presented to society yesterday afternoon at one of the delectable teas of the month. The family residence in F Street was abloom with roses, none of them fresher nor fairer than the bud in whose honor they were so lavishly bestowed.

Mrs. MacLennan, in black velvet and duchesse lace, embellished artistically with her dainty coloring and silver hair, presented the debutante, who wore an ideally girlish toilet of white satin under which orange, the skirt and bodice outlined with shimmering satin ribbon applied in bowknot design. Her flowers were American Beauty roses, their long stems sheathed in their foliage of green.

Mrs. MacLennan was aided in dispensing her gracious hospitality by Mrs. Purcell, Mrs. Walter Hutchins, Miss Emery, and Mrs. Garrick Mallory. Miss Sidney Stevens, in a daintily pretty gown of airy lightness, served cafe trappe, and coffee was poured by Mrs. William H. Holmes. Pink and white were the floral colors of the tea table, and the candles burned under pink shades. The official and fashionable world was brilliantly represented by the several hundred callers, and among them were many members of old residential families that embody Washington society in its most aristocratic phase.

Fashionable Washington was present en masse at the tea given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Thomas E. Waggoner to introduce Mr. Waggoner's charming young daughter, Miss Julia Waggoner, to the social world. The attractive young hostess, gowned in pink satin and lace, presented the guests to the debutante, who was clad in a daintily pretty gown of airy lightness, served cafe trappe, and coffee was poured by Mrs. William H. Holmes. Pink and white were the floral colors of the tea table, and the candles burned under pink shades. The official and fashionable world was brilliantly represented by the several hundred callers, and among them were many members of old residential families that embody Washington society in its most aristocratic phase.

The coteries of charming young ladies who formed the receiving party were Miss Frances O'Reilly, Miss Almee Powell, Miss Emily Kemp, Miss Mildred Williams, Miss Mary Brawner, Miss Carolyn, Miss Julia Waggoner, Miss Thatch, of Connecticut, and Mrs. John Lennox Waggoner. The tea room was decorated in yellow and green, the floral colors being carried out in chrysanthemums and palms. The lights that circled the crystal chandelier were reflected through yellow shades and the tapers in the candelabra grouped about the table burned under caps of the same royal color. Mrs. Paige poured chocolate, and the punch bowl was in the gracious custody of Mrs. MacLennan.

The Waggoner residence, with its gallery of art and priceless collections of curios gathered in foreign travels was transformed into a winter scene of white and gold. So beautiful were the floral tributes sent to honor the coming out of the fair young daughter of the house. Mr. Waggoner has for many years been closely identified with the business interests and the social life of the National Capital, and for that reason the majority of the guests were members of the old families of the city and Georgetown, though there were a number of representatives from the judiciary and official world.

The Earl and Countess of Strafford, who were married in New York Tuesday, reached Washington last night, and are registered at the Shoreham. Their stay in Washington will be a short one, and will be spent principally in sightseeing. They intend to return to New York by the end of the week and sail for England in the steamship Majestic on Tuesday next. The Earl, whose cousin, the Princess Edward of Saxe-Weimar, has just died in Stuttgart, Germany, is anxious to return to England with his bride for the Christmas holidays, which they will spend at his handsome estate, Wrotham Park, Bucks. Her ladyship is preparing a royal welcome for the couple.

The marriage of Miss Marie Mattingsly and Mr. Robert Treat Paine, Jr., has passed into reminiscence as one of the most brilliant social events that historic old Epiphany Church, with its decades of nuptial functions, can recall. Fashionable Washington was represented at the wedding yesterday by an assemblage that crowded the church from the chancel to the doors. In the pews reserved for families of both houses were the Boston relatives of the groom—men and women whose ancestors helped to found the laws of this country and who died on land and sea in their defense.

The bride, a lovely brunette of the true Gibsonsque type, was ideal in a wedding gown of heavy satin, richly embroidered with seed pearls. The misty folds of a tulle veil enveloped her figure, and above her forehead flashed a magnificent
